This case, which has created so much ex-

itement in Austin, Mississippi, was satisfac-orily determined on the twenty-eighth ultimo by the admission to bail of Captain M. J. Manning and the other parties accused of the murder of James B. Harvey. The whole case was thoroughly investigated before J. G. Gallagher, Esq., on the committing trial of M. J. Manning, and it was shown that the deceased was an old lover of Mrs. Manning's; that they were engaged before her first mar-riage, and that she did not marry him because they were both poor. She went to the Centennial, and while on her trip sought out Haryey at Chicago, and brought him to Memphis. They went together from Memphis to Austin on the steamer White, where unmistakable evidence of intimacy was established. They arranged that he should write her a letter claiming to be her step brother addressed. ter, claiming to be her step-brother, addressed to her by her first husband's name, and inquiring after her as if they had met since the war. This letter was sent under cover to the ostmaster at Austin, with the request that it be delivered to Mrs. Dunaway if living there still. It was delivered by the postmas-ter to an old negro, Wash Christian, who at once delivered it to Mrs. Manning. Captain Manning was not then at home, and she gave ne letter back to Wash, with instructions to ring it to her again when the captain re-irned, and deliver it to her in his presence. his was done, and the captain thus beguiled to permitting Harvey to be invited to his buse. The declaration of Mrs. Manning that she loved Harvey's little finger better than Manning's whole body, and declarations go-ing to show that there was a precone rted plot ing to show that there was a preconc rted plot to kill Manning was testified to by Miss Reagan, the niece of Mrs. Manning, who had accompanied her on the Centennial trip, and who divulged everything to Captain Manning on the night that Harvey was expected down on the boat. Manning met Harvey and killed him as soon as he was pointed out to him. It also appeared in the evidence that Manning started to arouse the mayor of the town and sured to arouse the mayor of the town and surrender himself, but was prevented from doing so by Dr. Chapman, whose wife is the niece of Mrs. Manning, and who begged that he would not bring out the disgrace of the family until he was compelled to do so. Manning was told, both by Dr. Chapman and I. M. Reagan, that Harvey was a dangerous man, who would kill him. The justice granted bail to Captain Manning in the sum af ten thousand dollars, and Judge Powell sustained the judgment of the justice and granted bail on habeas corpus to Chapman and others, who had been committed to jail without bail as accessories before and other without bail as accessories before and after the facts. The defendants were represented by General Chalmers, who was ably assisted by Hon. S. B. Morgan, of DeSoto. The community has been greatly aroused on account of the concealment of the fact of the killing,

THE Reasonover-Ellis murder case, which has been on trial for nearly three weeks in the criminal court, has awakened our deep st attention. To show the able conduct of the case, we have only to state that Generals Wright and Horrigan led the prosecution and Messrs. Gantt and Governor Harris the defense. Among the able lawyers who addressed the jury was Mr. D. S. Ross, the youngest but not least brilliant. Mr. Ross, who have been in the city only two years, has who has been in this city only two years, has shown decided talent in all the instances in which he appeared before the public. Mr. Ross, after having graduated in one of the eastern universities, traveled several years in Europe, studied abroad the character of those nations which furnish the largest number of adopted citizens to our Republic, and also mastered the German and French languages. His address to the jury showed talent and experience beyond his years.

The River and River Men's Interests-The Cheek-Line of Steamers in a Tight Place...The Cumberland River like a Sealed Book---Sleighing at Jackson.

Eighteen hundred and seventy-seven is here. Its advent was amid an unusually deep snow, such, indeed, as was never known heretofore in Memphis. The snow is at least twelve inches deep, and affords the best sleighing ever allowed in this city. The snow fell first over a week ago, and since that time the white mantle has been thickened by repeated additions. About two o'clock Thursday afternoon it began to snow, and continued all night, with a strong northwesterly wind. During that night the snow fell to a depth of During that night the snow fell to a depth of several inches, and next morning the fleecy visitor continued to make itself known. About dark Sunday there was another snow-fall, which continued until sevent two or three o'clock Monday morn-ninth is the last month during which our yet great stock of winter dry goods can be disposed of ere our season closes, and goods must be even closes and goods must be even clo golden sunbeams resting upon the pure white mantling of New Year's 1877. As the sun arose its bright rays shot through the wintry clouds, and, as if fascinated by the icy beauty of the frozen heavens, seemed to rest awhile upon the snowy couch all glittering with fringes of icicles. But this was only for a short while. The sun gleamed brightly enough, and under its intense radiance the cicle and snowy carpeting alike soon melted, never more to be seen until the return of another very severe winter. The effect of this has been to demoralize the streets, and render the sidewalks wet, disagreeable and slip-times over, we will at the end have done ourselves great good, we will have sold goods to our customers fully 40 per cent. under value, and all without injuring ourselves. Acting on these principles we shall begin to-day

This, however, has not diminished the interest in sleighing. All day Sunday, Sunday night and Monday the tinkling of the sleigh-bell was to be heard. Truly can it be said that Memphis has become crazy upon the subject of ice, snow and sliding. Every buggy, wagon and other vehicle to be had was converted into a sleigh, the principal runners being made of gas the military were unable to prevent the strikers from severely beating the engineer. The volunteers were not ordered to lond or use the tinkling of the sleigh-bell was to be heard. Truly can it be said that Memphis has become crazy upon the subject of ice, snow and sliding. Every buggy, wagon and other parties were badly knocked about. Several pistols were fired, but nobody was danger-ously wounded. The engineers can be made to prevent the strikers from severely beating the engineer. The volunteers were not ordered to lond or use the tinkling of the sleigh-bell was to be heard. Truly can it be said that Memphis has become crazy upon the subject of ice, snow and sliding. Every buggy, wagon and other parties were unable to prevent the strikers from severely beating the military were unable to prevent the strikers from severely beating the replication. the principal runners being made of gas pipes. The evident delight of the sleighers was not only laughable, but quite often ridiculous. It was, to the great majority of the people, something novel and strange, and hence fascinating. It is useless to say that this Christmas has been one of unusual entries of the shop. Four companies of the Fifteenth battalion have since been or dered out, but the men seemed unwilling to turn out, and at two o'clock in the afternoon only forty were under arms Reinforcements from the country arrived a four o'clock, but the company abandoned all this Christmas has been one of unusual enjoyment and genuine mirth to our people. While it is true that money has been, and is yet searce, still there were natural enjoyments which afforded our people great pleasure. The present snow is the deepest that ever fell in this locality. Of course you always find some quasi superanuated indistinguished who says that he know when there is understood negotiations are now pending between the Grand Trunk company always find some quasi superanuated indi-vidual who says that he knew when there was a heavier rain, a deeper snow, a colder day, a longer drouth or a severer storm.
Great things have doubtless occurred, or, rather, "happened," in the past, and it is hardly to be expected that old age, with the hardy to be expected that old age, with the inspiration of its long cherished associations and fond memories, should not be inclined to speak lightly and somewhat disparagingly of the present, with its unusual visitation and duration of snow, ice and novel adventure of fun, sorrow and hope. It is a fact that New Year's day was celebrated with great social eclat, the enjoyment being really intense: that is, to those who being really intense; that is, to those who called at the houses advertised for the occasion. No year has been inaugurated with more graceful and generous auspices than was 1877 yesterday. The queens of society, each assisted by some fair and graceful princess, did well, and in no city of the Union was the New Year more elegantly soluted through which the human voice issues, should through the human voic was the New Year more elegantly saluted and more gracefully entertained than in Memphis. The different mansiens where receptions were held evidenced a cultivated taste and social cheer to be commended. The young ladies were especially graceful in their second control of the c young ladies were especially graceful in their efforts to assist the older members of the efforts to assist the order members any open household, and at no time, nor at any open household, and at any open househ home were there aught but good taste and social refinement displayed. Happy, indeed, was the inaugural of 1877 in Memphis, and ong will the pleasant memories be cherished by the many who were participants in the welcoming of the new year. The deep snow reminds us of what the old negro said. He was stamping the snow-clad platform at the railroad depot in Texarkana when approached by a white man, who asked him how were the times, and what was the matter. "Golly, by a white man, who asked him how were the times, and what was the matter. "Golly, boss," he replied, "it seems to dis nigger dat de north an de south hab jimed hands.

Look at de snow, an see how de rabbits squeal."

Let us hope the heavy snowfall may be a good omen, as indicative of the unity of sentiment and harmony of fraternal relationship between the frozen north and the sunny south for 1877, and for everymore. The weather

The weather has moderated somewhat, and we hope to see a speedy dissolution of the snow, which is now retarding and, in fact, blockading busi-ness. At the levee there is nothing doing. It ness. At the levee there is nothing doing. It is well nigh impossible to haul a load of cotton, or anything else, up the streets. The mules slip, and are no longer able to perform their accustomed task. The levee presents a dreary, cold appearance, destitute of brute and man. Here and there may be seen a small pile of freight covered with snow, and all the more neglected because of the weather. As stated in Sunday's Appear, the steemers stated in Sunday's APPEAL, the steamers have sought ice-harbors, but the Illinois, G. W. Cheek, and A. J. White, now in the hands of the United States marshal, are lying just above the wharf, and in immine to the insurmountable obstructions at the landing. The United States marshal, who has, perhaps, about as much idea of the river ice-gorges and steamboats as a butterfly has of the north pole, refused to moor the steamers at any other point. Should there be an ice-gorge here like that of 1872, these boats will be cut down or sunk. However, the creditors will be the only losers, for the public have long since lost any interest in these boats, which are now tied to the bank and exposed to the dangers of the ice. Perhaps it would be a good thing to sink them; it may be the result if they are to remain where they are until the ice comes down. The upper Mississippi, Ohio and Cumberland are frozen, and there will be an unusually heavy flow of ice down in this direction. All the upper streams are frozen tight, and at present there is no hopeful indication of navigations. Retion being opened soon. Yesterday the ice served seats, Friday night, $1; at matinee, was floating past this city in large cakes, but 75c. Admission to matinee, 50c.

up to dark there was no sign of a gorge. The snow has been general throughout this State and Arkansas. At Nashville the snow fell to a considerable depth and affords fine sleigh-ing. Cumberland river is frozen solid and is now a skating park. The steamer T. T. Hill-man, which left Clarksville Saturday after-noon for Nashville, has not reached her destination, but is frozen in about twenty-five miles above the former city. The ice on Cumberland river is thick and close. Saturday night the clear waters on the Obio and Cumberland froze hard and now both streams are unnavigable. hard, and now both streams are unnavigable except for slides and skates. The snow south of here is reported the deepest ever known. At Senatohia, Mississippi, it is said to be four-teen inches deep. At Jackson, Tennessee, there is the same report, and the Sun, of that city, says: "For a week past an inch of frozen snow has covered the earth in this section, and the unusual sight of sleighs, and the merry chime of sleigh-bells, have been an interesting feature of the Christmas frolics. During all this time, for seven days at least, the sky has been overcast with dull and heavy clouds, that seemed literally to lower upon the earth. And on Thursday evening, about six o'clock, a brisk wind from the porthwest set in, and the snow wind from the northwest set in, and the snow began to fall in fine and blinding flakes. It has been falling ever since, and as we go to press (Friday night), has reached the unpredented average depth of fourteen inches, and in places the extraordinary depth of three and four feet. Such a snow storm was never before knewn in this climate. Walking is very laborious, and the bulk of our population are locked fast in doors. All traffic on the railroads is suspended, trains generally being literally snow-bound, a thing never FROM Worthington & Tinges, pharmacists, Baltimore, March 16, 1876: We are assured by the leading physicians that Colden's Lie-big's liquid extract of beef and tonic invigorator is a truly wonderful preparation, and may be relied upon as a preventive against disease, and effecting positive cures in cases of weakness, ague, depression, fever, and nervous afflictions. Toronto, January 1.—The termination of the strikes seem as distant as ever. The company are confident of their ability to prodrivers for their passenger and most of their freight trains, and to resume business as early as the civil and military authorities can passengers, is now lying at Cabourg, fearing to proceed, while at Belleville matters are assuming a more serious aspect. The striker are for the time in the ascendant. Last night seventy-eight men of the I ninth battalion were ordered to running the snow-plows and cars off th track. Much time was lost in this way, and the company decided to wait until daylight for farther work. Early this morning locomotive foreman went out and piloted the express train to Belleville On its arrival the strikers assembled, and several hours elapsed before a driver could be got to mount the engine to take the train west At the station the platform was crowded, and the military were unable to prevent the striously wounded. The engine was then re-turned to the shop. Four companies of the Fifteenth battalion have since been or-dered out, but the men seemed unwilling to turn out, and at two o'clock in
